

How do I honor and harness the emotion that people tend to feel on this topic?

What is the predominant emotion that people tend to feel on this topic?

How do you know? How does it show itself?

What is the opposite emotion—or the emotion that you would prefer people to feel?

What are some ways that you could infuse the preferred emotion into the lesson?
How can you present learning in a way that leaves them feeling the preferred emotion at the end?